Part 1: Complete Versions of Performance Examples from the book

Mohammad Reza Shajarian's Avaz in Iran and Beyond, 1979-2010

by

Rob Simms and Amir Koushkani

Due to lack of space we were only able to include short versions of the performance examples presented in the book. The following versions include all of the excerpts discussed in the text, including complete versions of the Dastan comparison and Ostad Shajarian's metered compositions.

Part 2: Transcriptions of Complete Performances from Major Recordings

(The following transcriptions were to be published by Delawaz in Iran in early 2012 as the third and final volume of our study of Ostad Shajarian's avaz. At present in Iran, all print publications must be submitted to the government for approval before they are permitted to go into production and be released. Delawaz submitted an application for publishing these transcriptions but unfortunately it was tacitly rejected by the government. Given this impasse, Ostad Shajarian agreed to make the materials available through this website (www.yorku.ca/robsimms/shajarian) for non-commercial purposes only. The following preface and transcriptions appear exactly as they were planned for the print publication, the only difference being that Delawaz would have included a Persian translation of the preface alongside the English.—Rob Simms, December 2012)

Preface

While Ostad Shajarian has millions of music fans in Iran and around the world, he is also highly regarded by Persian musicians for his mastery of avaz and Qur'an recitation, along with his deep knowledge of Persian literature, the styles of previous masters of avaz, and various radifs. He is truly a 'musician's musician'. For the past couple of decades, musicians have been waiting for him to present his own radif in some form for wider use, and as an important contribution to the tradition of radif studies. When we asked Ostad Shajarian about this while conducting research for our major study of his avaz,[1] he replied that his statement about the radif was already contained in his major recordings—in an artistic rather than a theoretical or didactic form. This book presents transcriptions of the complete avaz (excluding jawabs and metric compositions) from Ostad Shajarian's most famous albums, works that are discussed in detail in our study (particularly the second volume). It is presented in the spirit of the tradition that harkens back to Vaziri, Saba, Ma'roufi, and many others and continues vigorously to this day in Iran with the wealth of archival materials and arrangements—transcriptions and recordings—that have fortunately appeared.

It goes without saying that, like any transcription, what I present here is my opinion about how to notate the music, with all the subjective limitations that this entails. The complexity and musical iham intrinsic to Persian music, and especially Ostad Shajarian's avaz, is clearly open to alternate interpretations and perceptions.

I have tried to clarify musical phrasing through the use of layout, barlines, and beaming. Avaz sections (meaning the entire segments sung between long jawabs) are separated by barlines and set as new paragraphs in the layout; each section is given an ordinal number following the performance sequence. Phrases within the section are separated with dash on the first staff line. Commas indicate pauses of various lengths but are generally short, delineating sub-phrases. The beaming and flagging of notes reflects the vocabulary of musical motives or 'words' that make up sentence constructions. Beaming also reflects how I feel rhythmic stress, with relative weight falling on the first note of each beamed or flagged unit. Readers interested in details of my transcription methodology can consult the appendix of the first volume of our study.

[1] Co-authored by Amir Koushkani in two volumes: the first entitled The Art of Avaz and Mohammad Reza Shajarian: Foundations and Contexts, the second Mohammad Reza Shajarian's Avaz in Iran and Beyond, 1979-2010 (both are published by Lexington Books, 2012).

I wish to thank Amir Koushkani, Christy de Felice, and Shabnam Ataei for their help with this work. Special thanks to Ostad Shajarian for his inspiring art, from which there is so much to both enjoy and learn, and for his support of the project.
